HAVE YOU HEARD ...

WITH the help of a $20,000 donation from Platinum Properties, an earthquake-damaged kindergarten in Indonesia has reopened. Reconstruction of the Bina Mekar Kindergarten was funded by Platinum Properties' donation and an equal sum from an anonymous benefactor, who is a client of the firm.

These financial contributions supported the Happy Hearts Fund, a nonprofit organization dedicated to rebuilding schools after natural disasters. "The Happy Hearts Fund has had an incredible impact in disaster-torn areas helping to make education available to young children," said Khashy Eyn, founder and CEO of Platinum Properties. "We are pleased to be able to contribute to their efforts and thrilled that this school facility has reopened to once again provide a learning center for the community." In September 2009, a 7.0 magnitude earthquake killed dozens of people and destroyed schools and offices in West Java, Indonesia. The students of Bin a Meka School have since been attending class at the home of their teacher.
