

NEW YORK POST

January 31, 2013

NYP Real Estate Guide Home

TriBeCa $7.995 million

Indeed, “open space” is “special” in Manhattan — especially indoors. This “fully renovated” condo in a cast-iron boutique building on Franklin Street offers a full floor (accessed by private elevator) with 4,000 square feet of largely open expanse, including a massive living room, den, study, office and dining area. That’s before you consider the other side of the floor plan with three large bedrooms (the study and office could also serve as chambers), including the master suite with his-and-her walk-in, walk-through closets/dressing rooms. In fact, every bedroom (including the study and office) include three closets, a definite rarity — because storage space is special, too. Agents: Arie Abadi and Cyrus Eyn, Platinum Properties, 212-825-0050

