PLATINUM PROPERTIES LAUNCHES NEW LOOK

Brokerage Rebrands and Launches Revamped Website

New York, NY—April 22, 2013 – Since launching over seven years ago in the Financial District as one of the only brokerages specializing in the neighborhood, Platinum Properties has unveiled a fresh look representative of the company’s growth and success. The revamped corporate brand and a more user-friendly website signify Platinum’s achievements and increased presence as a leading brokerage in the New York City real estate marketplace.

“Our company has reached a milestone in its evolution and we felt it was time for a refreshed brand that characterizes who we are as a firm today,” said Khashy Eyn, Founder/CEO of Platinum Properties. “We also wanted to update and refine our online service offerings to provide our clients with the best possible tools and information to navigate the home-search process.”

The new website, which demonstrates the firm’s continuing commitment to its customers and professionalism, is launched on Drupal, a sophisticated web experience management system that is used to power websites for entities such as NYSE Euronext and National Geographic. It provides impressive user experience, offering neighborhood information, updated social media and a robust property listings engine. Built and designed by DreamFire, which has a dedicated practice and product portfolio for the real estate industry, the site was created on an advanced platform with emphasis to provide flexibility to evolve with the real estate needs of New Yorkers.

Enhanced tools enable users to refine their search by more extensive criteria, choose agents based on location and language, and utilize mapping devices while real-time news and how-to guides from Platinum Properties agents provide a more complete experience. The website also offers a feature to text listings, and direct communication channels to Platinum agents and management with integrated “We’ll Call You” and “Live Chat” utilities.

“With the increasing virtual presence of real estate companies across various platforms, we wanted to offer an elevated marketing platform for our agents to support their business,” said Daniel Hedaya, president of Platinum Properties. “Our new brand encompasses our company profile—young, modern and bold—and our flexibility to evolve with the changing market.”

Platinum Properties’ new logo represents a more sophisticated look, emulating the firm’s professional yet contemporary profile. Designed in collaboration with Red Fish Media, a prominent brand consultant whose other clients include Saks Fifth Avenue, Microsoft and Northern Trust, the new logo embodies the evolved character of the company.

Having represented a number of new developments and rentals, Platinum Properties has become one of the fastest growing luxury residential brokerage firms in the New York City area. Since its founding the company has expanded internationally, with the opening of an office in Paris, France, as well as a second Manhattan office in Midtown. Staffed with five brokers in 2005, Platinum Properties now has over 65 agents and 10 full-time employees. The firm launched an in-house management division, The Platinum Management Program, in 2009, and now also offers commercial real estate financial advising.
